

SQL Relational Database Guide

Section 1: INNER JOIN Queries

An INNER JOIN in SQL selects records that have matching values in both tables. It combines rows from two or more tables based on a related column between them.

SQL Relational Database Guide

Section 2: SQL Group By

The GROUP BY statement groups rows that have the same values into summary rows, like find the number of customers in each country.